falls short of the minimum length of qualifying service which would entitle him to a pension but should be read as including the difference between the total amount of his service qualifying for pension and the total length of service necessary to earn the maximum amount of pension admissible under the rules. Evidently therefore the power to condone deficiency cannot be used for raising the amount of a pension between the minimum one-sixth and a maximum half.

Sir,

With reference to Government order No: G 10785-7 G.M. 371-15-3 dated 31-1-1916 permitting my retirement from the service on a special pension from the date of the expiry of the privilege leave for one month and 27 days, viz, 14-3-1916 I have the honour to herewith submit my application for pension in the prescribed Form No:2.

From the enclosed Form it is clear that the total length of my service amounts to 13 years and 11 months of which 2 years 2 months and 28 days represent the total period of leave availed of from time to time with or without allowances. There thus remains to my credit but a small balance of eleven years eight months and 2 days as the aggregate period of qualifying service for pension.

Considering the circumstances in which I am seeking retirement from Government service I respectfully venture to beg of His Highness the Maharaja'a Government to be graciously pleased to grant me a special pension of Rs 100 per month, under Art:499 (M. S. R.) and to exempt my personal
